

ECONOMICS

After Hours
SPEAKER SERIES

Wildfire from Alaska to the Lower 48: History and Policy

Thursday, April 4, 6 pm

This talk covers the history and policy of wildfire from Alaska to the Lower 48. This talk will cover numerous questions such as: How have fire regimes changed since European settlement? How has wildfire policy in the United States differed from historical Indigenous practices? What are the costs of wildfire for society? How will climate change alter fire regimes in the future? How should forest management differ in the western United States and Alaska?

Join us at The Writer's Block Bookstore & Café (3956 Spenard Road) for a presentation and discussion with Jacob Gelman, Postdoctoral Fellow in the Department of Economics at UAA. Light refreshments • Cash bar.

Jacob
Gelman

College of Business and Public Policy
UNIVERSITY of ALASKA ANCHORAGE

UA is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer, educational institution and provider; and prohibits illegal discrimination against any individual: www.alaska.edu/nondiscrimination.